WHICH RACKET IS YOUR FAVORITE?

HOW TO CHOOSE YOUR RACKET

It can be difficult to choose a new racket, so we have tried to make it easy for you!

The most important factors when to choose a new racket are, the balance point and the stiffness in the shaft.

If you play a head heavy racket (a balance point on 300 mm and above) you will get more power in your strokes, and with a head light racket (a balance point below 300 mm), you will get faster movements with your racket.

If you are looking for a racket with more control, it could be useful with a stiff shaft in your racket. But if you are beginner or a player that needs a bit more power, then a softer shaft could be a way to improve your game.

For each racket we have created a diagram that describes the characteristics of the individual RSL models. We hope you find the racket that suits your game.

What does flexibility mean for your game

STIFF  FLEXIBLE

When you use a flexible shaft in the racket, it means you get more power. If you are looking for massive control, you must choose a racket with a stiff shaft.

We've made it easy for you:

MS10000

This racket is for the ambitious tournament player, who wants to control the game in all aspects. The racket has a frame widening from 2 o'clock to 10 o'clock, and again in the bottom of the head around the T-joint to stabilize the head, and make the frame stronger.

RSL Master Speed 10000 is a bit head heavy, and has an extra stiff shaft to maximize control and feeling with the shuttle. If you have the right feeling and touch, this racket will help you to improve both control and power in your game.

The racket is made of the best material, with a 30 tons graphite in the head, and a 40 tons graphite in the shaft.

MS9900

This racket has an exceptional new technology that enables a super thin shaft at only 6 mm, which gives a faster swing and more help in your strokes. RSL Master Speed 9900 has a medium flexible shaft and a balance point at 292 mm, which provide you both speed and is forgiving in your game.

The racket is made of the best material, with a 30 tons graphite in the head, and a 46 tons graphite in the shaft.
